The Clothes Pin is the finishing touch in washing. A fine piece of linen is hung over the line; the clothes pin is jammed down to hold it; the wind blows and a constant wrenching is going on until the article is taken down. A hole appears where the clothes pin was. It is difficult to see how you are going to get rid of the clothes pin; but there are things which make more holes than clothes pins, for instance, the rubbing up and down on a board—a necessity when an article is washed with common soap—will rub more holes and tear cloth to tatters, than can ever be plugged to clothes pins. There is a way out of this dilemma.

Use Pearline

You do not have to rub your clothes; boil them, boil them, rinse them, and the job is done. They will be cleaner, sweeter, whiter in half the time; colors will be brighter, flannels softer, and you have gotten rid of half the labor. PEARLINE costs no more than common soap. Millions of users are using it. Five cents will buy enough PEARLINE to prove to you that every word we say is true, and if ever a good many cents would be cheap for it.

Mr. George W Snow left yesterday for Boston on a short visit.

A boy by the name of Frank Curley, aged about eight years, fell into the river at Stickland's dock Saturday evening about seven o'clock, but was rescued by one of his playmates of the same age. With the current running as swiftly as it now is, it was a narrow escape for the little fellow.

A large rock fell from the ledge at the side of the track yesterday morning at a point just above the last trestle between Blanchard and Shirley on the B. & P., falling so close to the track that the truck

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

[illegible]

"The Speaker's casting vote" which the House rules were to prevent "propagation," in the way the Boston Globe refers to Mr. Reed. We remember recently witnessing with mild emotion those shrill but unsuccessful efforts of the same rules of the House and the Democrats were going to throw the whole question into the courts. Can the Globe inform us what has become of that proposed "test case?" It looks as though the Democrats were not half so anxious to get into the courts as they pretended to be, or in other words that it was a blind game they were playing.

Mr. Byrum, of Indiana, ramlads one of the persons who had the fish and was proud of it. He has been publicly endorsed by the House, a disgrace that would make a less thick skinned person hang his head in shame, but Byrum regards it as an honor. A rather clear notion, to be sure particular how it comes. As the Democrats generally blame him on they might now crown him leader of the minority as a reward of merit. Mr. Cobb having been presented to the Senate, Byrum would be about on a level with the cattle that have chewed up the cotton of the minority in that Congress.

Editor Edmund of the Gazette on Mr. Cobb in the following Sunday Union: "Mr. Chandler William Cobb retires now of his unfortunate faith in Mr Grover Cleveland upon the view of recent developments, as they relate to him as a private party. He might find quarters at the "sign of dandy" and the greatest need and inevitable obstacle of the Democracy, and, as a matter of course, of the Congress, for 1886. It is said by many that estimates of diminishing popularity with advancing age by an acquaintance a gentleman as Mr. Cobb. We will admit of nothing in comparison to our native Maine climate, wherein the [illegible] Pine State.

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Advertiser says there is a very strong current in behalf of the State of Maine to have a Federal Election Bill of any kind. Such a feature will probably secure the condemnation of the people, especially for such a bill is opposed by every candid observer. Elections in this State to-day are the brightest spot of a year, when they are not years at the time and in the very most dirty investigations in Alabama, where the political Democrats managed themselves in order to steal the seat in Congress now occupied by Mr. Breckinridge. The election of either has doubtless altogether too long and the people demand as they have the right that Congress shall provide the needed remedy. Aside from past evidence the very attitude of the Southern Congressmen and the Southern press emphasize the necessity of legislation on this subject. They are unable to prevent it because they know with honest elections the presence of the Solid South is never seen. Gerrymander, Fraud, ballot stuffing and Democratic majorities have been the "real estate" which is so loud. These threats are in keeping with the notorious record of the majority of a century, but instead of [illegible] makes Democratic control which is [illegible] the Democrats of the people [illegible] should place a law upon the statute books of the State.

The Democratic papers are making a merry laugh [illegible] at the attempt of the Congressional Advocate to [illegible] preference in the State to voting [illegible] with considerable significance the Maine Sun, for instance, says:

In the city of the Democratic Council of Lewiston Mayor Howard, a Democrat, has been [illegible] Democratic Council, and [illegible] Democratic Council, and [illegible] Democratic Council, and Secretary Blaine's Letter to the President Sent to Congress.

With Plans for a Preliminary Survey of the Inter-Continental Railway.

WASHINGTON, May 19. The President sent to the Senate and House to-day, a copy of the letter of the Secretary of State transmitting the proposition adopted by the Pan-American Congress for an inter-continental railway. The letter is as follows:

To the President:

I have the honor to submit herewith a plan for the preliminary survey for the railway line to connect the great commercial cities of the American hemisphere. No more important recommendation has come from the International American Conference, and I earnestly commend it to your attention with the full confidence that prompt action will be taken by Congress to enable this Government to participate in the promotion of the enterprise. The resolutions of the Conference were accompanied by special reports concerning the transportation facilities which already exist in several American Republics. These reports comprise all the information that could be gathered upon this important subject, and will be found interesting and authoritative.

The River Bill Still Before the Senate.

The House Has a Quiet Day on the Floor.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, May 19. Mr. Dawes presented a petition signed by [illegible] citizens of Lowell, Mass., praying for the passage of the Blair educational bill.

Mr. Hale, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported back the bill making appropriations for the payment of certain claims reported by the Court of Claims, and it was placed on the calendar.

The River bill was taken up and [illegible] Mr. Allison moved to amend the bill by striking out the appropriation for the improvement of the Mississippi river between the mouth of the Ohio and the mouth of the Missouri river, and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

For the improvement of the Mississippi river between the mouth of the Ohio and the mouth of the Missouri river, $1,000,000.

Mr. Allison explained that the amendment was offered at the request of the Committee on Commerce, and that it was the intention of the committee to report a bill providing for the improvement of the Mississippi river from the mouth of the Ohio to the Gulf of Mexico.

Mr. Wilson, of West Virginia, made a statement in relation to the condition of the Kanawha river, and said that the bill reported on Saturday last by the Committee on Commerce was not satisfactory to the people of that section. He hoped that the bill would be amended so as to provide for the improvement of the Kanawha river.

Mr. Allison said that the bill reported by the Committee on Commerce was not satisfactory to him personally, but it was the best that could be obtained. A large line of navigable water would be improved, including the Kanawha river.

Charles Illingworth, a former living in Wilton, has a blooded bull, of such vicious disposition as to make it prudent to keep him confined with a ring in the nose in a stable. A few nights ago, the door of the stable being open because the weather was warm, the bull released himself and escaped. In the first place he demolished the family goose and caused a hundred or more hens to make the night hideous with their squawks. Then he tore down the enclosure to the pig pens and sent two sows and their litters grunting and squealing about the premises, and then he tore down the clothes line on which a week's wash had been left out to dry. After this fine row, the bull took to the woods and the neighborhood is now in search of him.

A dispatch to the city of Brooklyn has been published, to the effect that the widow Gay of Bridgewater, Me., who died recently, left a will giving $100 to the Methodist church of that village, and the residue of her property, amounting to $40,000, to the Methodist Episcopal Church, but that the will was broken by the heirs-at-law, who received the money. The dispatch is a fake from beginning to end. Mrs. Gay died in Brooklyn, where she had lived for many years, and left no will. Her property, which was small, went to her heirs-at-law, who received it. Not a dollar went to the church.

A dispatch to the Boston Herald from Bangor says: "Mrs. Wilbur Treat of Rome, has received from Capt. Adams, of Carthage, Me., the classical cream taken from a cow in Wilton, Maine. We would suggest that the "cheesy gale" in this their wedding journey that they experienced in the Rockies in August last, and December, behind the Alps, travel a bit to Maine, perhaps in search of the original cream. Executive audit counts today. It is reported around that every candidate for governor is going to make a speech on labor this year who never did before on any other subject, from the days of Washington down. Even Frank McClean, the boy who was carried home from Bangor Normal at Calais on the shoulders of enthusiastic students, was once in favor of the eight hour law.

R. P. Hodgkins, whose column of the Lewiston Journal on matters of town gossip has been the head of an educational which caused one of the deepest blushes in the annals of Androscoggin county, is now in Washington, on a visit to the capital of the country, and will probably remain there for some time. Some of the Lewiston people who met Mr. Hodgkins on the train near Dover, Me., say that when the latter saw the hills and valleys of Piscataquis county, he was so overcome by the beauty of the scenery that he could not help shedding tears. Mr. Hodgkins is a native of Piscataquis county, and has been accustomed to the scenery from his childhood. He is a poet, and a very good one, and sometimes of deeper sentiment than his humorous efforts would indicate. He is evidently thoroughly accustomed to his surroundings. His dad and his husband were so interested in the small traveler that they went to Thomaston to see if she arrived safely. Another lady who came to Thomaston had planned to establish herself in child training, but she left her lower right-hand teeth in the car window, and when she got off the train in the darkness she mistook the location of Thomaston, and is now busy telling about her mistake.

A gilded wedding cook goes Wednesday to the homestead of Miss Abbie M. Bennett in Bangor, who is to be married to Frederick Chandler, Esq., of Boston, on the evening of Thursday, May 22. The bride, Miss Florence Rogers, has been a teacher in the public schools of Bangor, and is a graduate of the Maine State Normal School, while the groom, Mr. John Chandler, is a son of Hon. Zachariah Chandler, of Detroit.

Mr. Benjamin Hall, of the firm of Sargent & Hall of Belfast, says that probably there will not be enough water, or at least not the average, this spring to run the mills. The small dams of country mill owners will be dry, and the mills will be compelled to shut down. Mr. Sargent has already contracted for the spring, starting out the gunning out of rough lumber.

A young lady, a native of Prospect Harbor, who recently made the journey from Maine to Tennessee, accompanied by a number of friends, including all along the route, was met from Bangor to Memphis by a party of Prospect Harbor people, and at every station on the road was greeted by a crowd of friends. Among the party who met the train at Memphis was the young lady's father, who had not seen his daughter for eight years. The meeting was a most affecting one, and one of the most touching incidents of the journey. The young lady is a graduate of the Ellsworth High School, and is highly accomplished. She is now engaged in teaching in Tennessee.

A young man calling his name Lamprey, from Boston, arrived in Belfast several days ago and put up at a boarding house during which he ate an abnormally large quantity of food, and finally left without paying his bill, and the landlady was left to mourn the loss of her money and the departure of her boarder. Lamprey was evidently accustomed to his surroundings. He had been in the habit of eating lampreys, and when Farmer Ellsworth returned he found the animal standing in the stable in a most beautiful attitude, with the frame of the grindstone still upon his back.

Frederic Spinner, the collector of probably the greatest gathering of objects of all sorts of data ever brought together by a private person died in Paris two weeks ago. Born in Hungary in 1809, he came to New York in 1837 and engaged in the manufacture of artificial flowers, which he disposed of to Barnum, Wallack and other managers of theatres and museums, and with the proceeds of his sales he began collecting curiosities of every kind.

The Rockingham park in Westchester, the finest, most closely kept trotting park in the country, is the largest one in the world. It will be opened on Decoration day, which will be observed as a holiday in Westchester county and Westchester and with by a grandstand that can be seen from the city of Washington. The oval has 1½ miles to a mile, is perfectly circular, a quarter mile straightaway, and is considered to be the finest course in the world. The Rockingham park is the property of the Coney Island Jockey Club, which also owns the Brighton Beach race track.

George Smith, the keg Queen Victoria's confidence for 40 years and an old valet of the royal household for over 40 years, has just resigned from the service. He has been provided for handsomely and permission is given him to go and come wherever he pleases. He takes great interest in the famous cream-white Abyssinians, the cats of which are killed in birth if their color is not distinct. He occupies himself by lounging around the royal mews.

The figures quoted in the German budget for the coming year represent the effective force as consisting of 19,787 officers, 1,685 of the non-commissioned officers and privates, 11799 military doctors, 24 chief vets, 824 veterinarians, 288 paymasters and inspectors, 17,388 officials, 1,000 supernumeraries, 20,000 officers' servants, 1,000 officers' horses, 24,000 horses for the artillery, 4,000 horses for the transport corps. The total cost is given as £32,000,000 sterling, in addition to a sum of £8,000,000 sterling for extraordinary expenditure, including barracks and the replacement of war stores, making a total of £40,000,000 sterling.

Quite a number of people are going to Bangor to-day to attend the funeral of Mrs. Ann Bell, who died suddenly at the Bangor House on Thursday morning. Lamb, of the steamer Katahdin, who was at her mother's bedside when she died.
